6. [ ] Leon Herman, Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress, called and said that it had been decided that the compendium of articles on the Soviet economy now being put in final form for the Joint Economic Committee should contain a paper on Soviet educational techniques or technology. [ ] of the Agency, has been suggested to him as an author for such a piece. Herman would like us to see if such an article can be prepared by [ ]

I took this occasion to discuss with Herman the point raised by Mr. Stark, of the Joint Economic Committee staff, concerning Rush Greenslade's article. (See Journal of 8 June 1966.) Herman felt that both Jim Knowles, Staff Director and his Deputy, Mr. Stark, were unduly concerned about the Greenslade article. I told Herman that we had this matter under consideration and planned to be in contact with the Joint Committee staff.
